Cowley and its Neighborhood.

F. W. Doubt visited Blairmore Saturday.

W. C. Robinson paid a visit to Macleod Monday.

J. L. Weddell, of North Fork, was in town Monday.

John Bare, of the Porcupines, has finished threshing.

New chimneys are to be placed in the Alberta Hotel.

Mrs. F. J. Biddell has completely recovered from her illness.

Mr. Mathieson, of the Union Bank, paid a visit to Coleman Saturday.

Messrs. Pettit, Buchanan and White made shipments of grain during the week.

F. W. Godaal, of the Cowley Ranch, has gone to winter in southern Europe.

Rev. G. Hamilton preached an impressive and timely sermon Sunday night.

There is yet a large quantity of wheat to be threshed in our northern suburbs.

A meeting of the Victorian Order of Nurses was held here Monday afternoon.

Several commercial travellers have been doing the rounds of Cowley this week.

Dr. Cartwright, dentist, who was practising in Cowley, went to Lundbreck Tuesday.

Our stores are being trimmed up for Christmas. Great displays of novelties are in evidence.

A paragonage is being built for Rev. S. Peat on the property at the rear of the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Lloyd, who has spent some time the guest of Mrs. F. J. Biddell, returned to Calgary last week.

Alex. Faulds, a mining expert from Vancouver, B.C., was examining mining properties in this neighborhood last week.

The peculiar properties of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy have been thoroughly tested during epidemics of influenza, and when it was taken in time we have not heard of a single case of pneumonia. Sold by all dealers.

Several farmers in this vicinity had their potato crops touched by the frosts of the early part of the season and some heavy losses were sustained.

John Bare and his son, Charles, of the Porcupine Hills, were in town Monday. Mr. Bare is one of our oldest settlers, and is a true type of a happy and progressive western farmer.

The greatest danger from influenza is of its resulting in pneumonia. This can be obviated by using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, as it not only cures influenza, but counteracts any tendency of the disease towards pneumonia. Sold by all dealers.

Mrs. J. Keon officiated at the organ in the Presbyterian Church Sunday last in the absence of the organist, Miss Knight, who is enjoying a well-earned holiday at Lethbridge.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by all dealers.

W. G. Askey is affecting many needed improvements to the interior of his store. Painters are at work on the ceilings and walls and everything will be bright and attractive for Christmas.

Hustling Town of Lundbreck

The day school closes on the 24th for the Christmas holidays.

Dr. Cartwright, dentist, arrived here Tuesday, and will remain a week.

Mrs. (Dr.) Donald, who has been visiting her daughter at Lethbridge, has returned home.

The C. P. R. has a party of surveyors at work surveying for a new line along the river.

The weather was extremely cold the past week. On Monday night the glass registered 28 below.

Mr. Huchins was in town from north on Wednesday, and returned with a load of provisions for the Head Syndicate.

Rumor has it that a bachelor's ball is being arranged for Christmas week. Such an affair should be a bouncer for there is certainly an over plus here.

Christmas has already appeared in Lundbreck. As usual the Lundbreck general store is not behind in giving a display of new and artistic Christmas goods.

T. Madden, proprietor of the Windsor Hotel, who has been suffering very much of late from a fractured shoulder, went to the hospital at Frank on Thursday.

DADDY'S LITTLE GIRLIE

Who is this with smile so sweet,
So innocent, yet so complete,
The smile that never knows defeat?
Daddy's little girlie.

Two sparkling eyes, see how they gleam,
Innocence in the extreme,
A token of love's sweetest dream,
Daddy's little girlie.

Who's sweeter than the violets here,
All glistening with the morning dew,
Who is this with heart so true?
Daddy's little girlie.

Who is Nature's fairest child,
By which her other works failed,
A daisy, in a desert wild,
Daddy's little girlie.

Who is it gives the sweetest kiss?
Who is it fills the house with bliss?
Who is it we most would miss?
Daddy's little girlie.

May she be guided day by day,
By him to whom we earnest pray
Until it is his time to say
"Come, daddy's little girlie!"

SWAN TUCKERSON.

Bellevue, Alta.

Several large shipments of cattle and produce were made from here to points east and west during the week.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days.

This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. Sold by all dealers.

The frost of Sunday and Monday was the keenest yet. Sunday night the thermometer registered 34 below zero and Monday night 28. Fortunately there was no wind, otherwise it would have been felt more keenly.

If you are suffering from biliousness, constipation, indigestion, chronic headache, invest one cent in a postal card, send to Chamberlain's Medicine Co., Des Moines, Iowa, with your name and address plainly on the back, and they will forward you a free sample of Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets. Sold by all dealers.

We have to thank the Lundbreck "croaker" who is getting around amongst his neighbors quoting the ill qualities of the local paper. As is usual, this paper does not cost him one cent, neither has any other paper in Canada. Could he but imagine the depth of esteem in which he is held he would see the wisdom of co-operating with our people in support and encouragement of the local paper or any other medium intended for our general good.

COWLEY FREIGHT SHED

Rumor has it that Cowley is soon to have a new and larger railway freight shed. We trust such a rumor is not without good foundation and that the C. P. R. people have had the matter under consideration and see the need of improving facilities and accommodation at this important centre. This season has been an extremely busy one right here and at times the capacity of the freight shed has been much overtaxed.

There is also a need of platform extension. The present stand is far too short and passengers are often obliged to go beyond the platform to board the car. With the growth of Cowley it is reasonable to expect that railway facilities should rise proportionately.

BURNED TO DEATH

A gloom was cast over Cowley last Thursday when it became known that Mrs. Hayden, the young wife of a rancher living several miles from town, had met her death through fire. While in the act of lighting the fire she made use of the coal oil can with the usual result that the oil ignited, causing an explosion which set fire to the house and her clothing. Her little infant lying in a cot near by was first to be thought of. She hastened to it and brought the little one to safety. While doing this the wind had fanned the fire into her clothing and very soon she was enveloped and succumbed to the flames. Her husband was not home at the time and is horror stricken at the dreadful fate of his wife, who had but entered upon the threshold of married life and begun to gather around her everything that would mean for their future happiness and prosperity. Mrs. Hayden was a favorite with all who knew her and had numerous friends in Cowley, where she had resided prior to her marriage. She had but turned her nineteenth birthday and was married about a year ago. Being wiped away in the bloom of life this case is the saddest in our history, and the sympathy of the whole community goes forth to the sorrowing husband and relatives in their bereavement. The funeral took place Saturday forenoon and was largely attended, the remains being interred in the Livingstone cemetery.

Sympathetic references were made from Cowley pulpits Sunday.

POULTRY RAISING

Poultry raising is an important branch of general farming which is gradually developing in Alberta, but not to the extent which its importance warrants. The home market is nowhere nearly supplied either with eggs or poultry, large quantities being imported from Manitoba, Ontario, California, Washington and Oregon. In 1901 the value of eggs and poultry imported amounted to over $400,000, and good prices prevail at all seasons, the average wholesale prices for eggs on the coast being: Fresh eggs, 50 cents per doz.; case eggs 50 cents per doz.; while the retail price for fresh eggs averaged 37 cents per doz., ranging from 25 cents to 70 cents. Fowls bring from $5 to $8 per doz.; chickens $4 to $7; ducks, $5 to $11; geese, $1 to $1.50 each, and turkeys, from 22 to 30 cents per pound.

A practical poultry raiser who has made a success of the business on Vancouver Island, says: "I have no hesitation in saying that there are good profits in the business, conducted on a strictly commercial basis. In fact, I know of no other branch of agriculture which is so profitable, having in view the amount of capital to be invested and the expense of conducting it. Properly managed, in any number, poultry might reap a profit of at least $1 per head per annum."

Actual experience shows that the business is very profitable. In a recent report to the Department of Agriculture a well known farmer gives the following results from 150 hens in the year 1900:

Receipts

From sale of eggs	$375.00
From sale of chicks	50.00
From increase of flock	25.00
	$450.00

Expenses

100 bush. wheat at $1.05 bush.	$105.00
50 bush. barley at 90c. a bush.	30.00
Sundries	10.00
	$145.00

Net profit. $305.00

Every portion of Southern Alberta is suitable for poultry raising. Hens, ducks, geese and turkeys can be bred to great advantage and the dry-belts and uplands are particularly well adapted to the latter. With such facts before them it is a matter for surprise that many farmers have to send to the nearest store for their eggs and fowls. Eggs and chickens are by-products on every well conducted eastern farm, and they add considerably to the annual income, as well as providing agreeable and healthful variety to the family's bill of fare.

BEEF TYPE OF CATTLE

The general appearance of the beef animal, when of correct type, shows a distinctly meat-producing form. The animal is compact and broad of back from shoulder points to hips; has a wide, deep body; short and somewhat thick neck; wide, deep full bosom; rather broad, thick, fleshy hind quarters; and a generally deep, wide body. Viewed from one side, the top and bottom line of body run rather parallel with the back quite level. From front or rear the outline should be rather full and broad. Cattle of this type are preferred to as "blocky," indicating compactness and neatness of form. If the body is inclined to be long, it may be termed "rangy" while animals long of leg, showing too little depth and fullness of body, may be termed "leggy."

The head should have a broad, strong muzzle, indicating superior grazing and feeding capacity. The nostrils, when somewhat prominent and large, with a wide nose, show ample nasal capacity to supply the lungs with air. A Roman nose sometimes occurs with cattle, but it is neither attractive nor desirable. The distance from the muzzle to the point immediately between the eyes is preferably short, with some curve or "dip," as it is termed, just below the eyes which should be wide apart, large and indicate a good temperament. A quiet eye means an easy feeder, or while a nervous restless eye shows an animal unsatisfactory to handle and care for. The forehead, as indicating mental capacity, should be broad and reasonably full.

The face and cheeks in a superior head are full and deep, connected with a rather broad, strong lower jaw. If on the horned type, the horns should show plenty of fine texture and quality, and be graceful and of harmonious proportions. An abundance of rather long hair should crown the poll on top of the head. It is very desirable that the ear should be neatly attached to the head, without coarseness, and that it should be of superior quality and neatly pointed and covered with silky hair, with long hair at the

HAVE YOU WRITTEN HOME TO MOTHER?

If any mother in the East is so unhappily situated as to have a lad in the West who forgets to write to her, she should cut out the following beautiful verses, written many years ago by an Irish lady, and send to him. There is heart-break in them, and loneliness and tears:

Pray, may I ask you, worthy lad,
Whose smile no care can smother,
Though busy life throbs round about
Have you written home to mother?

You are forgetting, aren't you, quite,
How fast the weeks went flying,
And that a little blotted sheet,
Unanswered still is lying?

Don't you remember how she stood,
With wistful glance at parting?
Don't you remember how the tears
Were in her soft eyes starting?

Have you forgotten how her arms
Stole round you to caress you?
Have you forgotten those low words
"Good-bye; my son, God bless you?"

Oh I do not wring my patient love,
Save God's there is no other,
So faithful through all mist of sin—
Fear not to write to mother.

Tell her how hard it is to walk
As walked the Master lowly;
Tell her how hard it is to keep
A man's life pure and holy.

Tell her to keep the lamp of prayer
Alight—a beacon burning,
Whose beam shall reach you far away,
Shall lure your soul returning.

Tell her you love her dearly still,
For fear some sad to-morrow
Shall bear away the listening soul,
And leave you lost in sorrow.

And then, through bitter falling tears
And sighs you may not smother,
You will remember when too late,
You did not write to mother.

edges or tips.

The neck of the beef animal tends to be short, thick and muscular, of medium depth, and should be neatly attached to the head and smoothly blended to the shoulders. The bull of maturity shows a neck of more length, with heavier muscles, some arch and a heavy coat of hair. The female will have a shorter, lighter neck, with less thickness and less depth. The steer should have a shorter, fuller, smoother fleshed neck than the cow. When in perfect pose with head up, the top line of the neck should be slightly raised above the height of the withers.

The shoulders should extend well into the back, lying smoothly covered with flesh, blending neatly with the body. A high type of shoulder is inferior, covered with flesh from shoulder point to top of withers. Rough angular shoulders, unevenly covered are among the most common defects of cattle. A prominent shoulder also emphasises the development behind it.

The breast and chest are most important. The former should be carried well forward and be broad and full in the bosom. As one stands and views a beef bull in show form, a great breadth of breast and strength of bricket meets the eye. Sometimes the breast and chest have great depth and the bricket comes within fifteen inches of the level of the foot. Viewed from one side it may curve forward like the prow of a ship. With the cow considerable bosom may show, but not in so great a degree, and with less breadth and feminine outline.

The chest which lies between the shoulders and just back of them should be full at the top, showing much spring of rib and also well filled out in the front flanks. The most beautiful front on the beef animal, no matter whether bull, cow or steer, is a smoothly laid, well fleshed shoulder, with a strong arch of rib behind, leaving little or no depression. Much depression behind the shoulders or a narrow, contracted, low chest indicates lack of constitution. — Plumb's Types and Breeds of Farm Animals.

TALES OF THE CASCADES

CHAPTER IX
AROUND THE CAMP FIRE

Continued

Looking furtively around the room Zacky at last gazed steadily at the deer head which had just been set above the doorway of the huge tent.

"Do you know that that deer's head just put me in mind of my anniversary day away down in Colorado. You must know I staked a rich silver claim for myself and my partner and I never did one bit of work for eight thirty years after. My partner and I camped on the banks of Colorado river and we just lived a life that's worth talking."

"Well, to begin my story I thought to myself that I would at times, this time before I glided into the silver claim, that I would by accident take quiet glimmer up the trail that skirts the Colorado river. Packing up my grub in an animal sack and tying in a double-barrelled shotgun into the pack saddle I was making good headway. But one word of caution in regard to my firing material."

"That double-barrelled shooting gun was given to me by my old father who used to hunt in the Sierra Nevada years before. It was seven feet long from stock to sight and it was polished like a mirror. Thinks I to myself I'll take advantage of that gun, I'll pack it with all my invaluable. So in I put my little silk handkerchief, a collar button, pocket knife and an old ring my girl threw back at me and all the trinkets I owned made about carrying in the hills. When I had 'em all jammed down good and tight I worked the two ends of the gun and I felt myself safe."

"Across Blue Bell's pack-saddle I cinched this piece of artillery, lengthwise of the whole beast. I called my mule Blue Bell after a favorite old mine."

"It was three o'clock in the morning when Blue Bell and I made our first steps visible on the sandy slopes of the Colorado river. After up the trail I could not see one putting out almost across the trail, but I went, nevertheless, as I felt I was on a lucky scout. How largely I didn't know."

About a mile and a half up the trail the river began to look more like a silver chain than an overworked creek. Every time a spray was made it seemed as if some one was flogging the end of the chain. The sun seemed to reflect its light. A few of its rays of burnished light struck Blue Bell and she turned around and pawed the air as if I had made the water river jump. But on she went.

Around the next bend my companion at once stood stock still. Not a muscle quivered, although beads of malice sweat poured in a continuous draught down his sides. I rounded her to go on, I coaxed her, I pleaded with her, but all to no avail.

As I turned around an unconscious shudder came over me in the shape of an elk convulsion, for the time before me very blinkers stood erect and comfortable, a giant elk, the biggest elk that ever roamed the plains of North America.

Instantly I seized Blue Bell around the neck and walked until I had reached the mine on my line of campaign. The elk never stirred a whit. He couldn't as I afterwards found out as his antler had caught in a snag and he was fast. If I had known that what a beautiful specimen I could have had back to the camp. All I would have had to do was rope him, but then we don't do what is possible these days anyhow."

Carefully I undid the lashes from my gun. Carefully I pulled a cap out of my jacket pocket. Carefully I placed the gun to my shoulder, and very carefully I fired. How straight I did not know for some time, but when I came to myself, there wasn't a scratch on the edge of the tent, but my hand extended at an angle of forty-five degrees overlooking the Colorado river. Away down near the glowing water saw my faithful pal repeating Blue Bell turning complete double-ute right in the air. I took out my handkerchief and wiped my tears right there."

Presently I thought to myself, isn't it time to look around now? And just then I thought of the elk. I raised myself in as dignified manner as possible, for I thought that perhaps the elk might still be there.

Bliss the fates he was, dead as two mules. With much reverence I walked toward his highness and touched him on the shoulder. He never moved. I was horrified.

Carefully I took out my foot rope. Carefully I touched his nose and I found him to be twelve feet long and

NEW SEED FOR

THE FARMER

Important Experiments Made By

The Agricultural Department

Ottawa, Dec. 9.—The question of growing and maturing seed for Canadian farmers is one of the most important questions which this country has to deal with, and in this connection Mr. George H. Clark head of the seed branch of the department of agriculture says:

"The variable soil and climate found between Vancouver and Prince Edward Island furnish conditions for growing and maturing seed of nearly all our field root and vegetable crops equal and in some respects superior to those prevailing in the parts of Europe from which Canada obtains the greater part of her seed. The seed-growing experiments that were authorized by this Department of Agriculture in 1908 have continued to be quite successful. Already there is evidence to show that home-grown selected seeds produce a better early growth and a more satisfactory crop than do the imported stocks."

"The growing and selecting of superior quality seeds of these crops is a highly scientific branch of agriculture, but plenty of Canadian farmers are equal to the task. When compared with Europe, the expense for labor is a deterrent to seed growing, but good lands for that purpose are to be had in Canada at from $30 to $60 per acre, while the value of land in the seed-growing districts of Europe ranges from $600 to $1000 per acre. To encourage further the production of high-class seed of these crops in Canada, this branch is prepared to secure and provide the services of an expert, well trained in both the practice and science of seed growing, who may, in addition to giving information by correspondence, visit and inspect the operations of growers of field root and vegetable seeds during the summer."

"During October 218 samples of seeds were received at the Ottawa laboratory for purity or three across. In my enthusiasm I rushed down the trail and ran breathlessly into the camp. I told my story twenty times before I was believed, and then as if something had bewitched the roughers they paced their miles and sped towards the spot."

In an hour they returned and my triumph was complete. Zacharias was a hero that day. I found many friends that before were enemies, penance because I was free with the dust, but perhaps not. I hope not."

Immediately upon the arrival of the biggest elk that was ever slain in North America, I ordered it to the butcher shop. The butcher, realizing the immense worth of the meat, paid me on the spot two hundred and sixty-nine dollars and forty-cent cents. I carefully deposited all that money in the cash register behind the bar of the saloon. And during the day I borrowed it back in installments, according to the thirst of myself, and don't forget my new friends."

In a day or so I began to get letters. Most singular thing them days for me. They all had the same thing. Here's one of them:

Dear Zack,—I bought a piece of your elk and I enjoyed it very much. I also want to express my heartiest wishes for your advancement. I also think you must have suffered some terrible calamity as I have with such a small bit of a gold ring which I found in that elk meat. I know you will want to keep it."

Yours sincerely,
Jack Carr

I got a lot of others. Deag, I found it to be twelve feet long and germination test, nearly all coming from seed merchants. Of the 14 samples of red clover seed tested for purity, four graded No. 1, six were medium quality and four were prohibited for sale under the Seed Control Act. Of the 56 samples of alfalfa analyzed, 15 graded No. 1, 32 were medium quality and 6 were prohibited. Thirteen samples of timothy seed were tested and all graded No. 1. The two samples of alfalfa seed tested both graded No. 1."

The store of plenty.
The store of quality.
Prescriptions carefully compounded by experts.

We have just received $2000.00 stock of Chickery, all imported goods. In beautiful designs. Tea Sets, Dinner and Fancy Berry Sets, Japanese ware, etc. We have bought them direct from the makers, thereby saving the middleman's profits. The public benefit in this deal. Manufacturer's prices on all goods.

NEW LINE IN STATIONERY

You can't beat our 23 cts. box of stationery sold elsewhere for 35 cts. Leather stock, replete now with new goods. Belts good and strong for up. Purse and satchels, special lines in Black Leather, real strong, worth double the price, only $1.00.

SPECIAL INDUCEMENT TO CUSTOMERS

We give $5.00 and $10.00 tickets on demand to householders. Every purchase is marked on the card and when filled a silver spoon, fork or knife is given gratis.

It will pay you to see over our large and varied stock.
